FDA approved cyclophosphamide for several cancers and pediatric nephrotic syndrome

FDA · Approval

If you're taking or have been offered cyclophosphamide (a chemotherapy medicine) for treatment of cancer, this FDA approval covers its use in adults and children for several malignant diseases.

This approval also includes pediatric minimal change nephrotic syndrome (a kidney condition). It is for children whose disease did not respond well enough to steroid therapy or who couldn't tolerate it.

The label does not establish safety and effectiveness for nephrotic syndrome in adults or other kidney disease. Your next steps depend on what you're being treated for.
